Alpha Card Services Markets ExaDigm XD1000

Leading Merchant Acquirer Now Offers ExaDigm's Dual Comm. Countertop Payment Terminal

SCHAUMBURG, IL – July 22, 2010 – ExaDigm, Inc., the leading innovator of wired, wireless and integrated payment solutions, today announced at the 2010 8th Annual MWA Conference that Alpha Card Services, a leading payment processor and merchant acquirer, will market ExaDigm's XD1000 Dual Comm. Countertop Payment Terminal to its merchant customers.

Alpha Card has chosen to add the XD1000 to its terminal offering because it offers a truly future-proof and highly cost-effective solution greatly reducing the impact that compliance upgrades, technology changes and advances in communications can have on their merchant customers. Featuring an innovative modular design and advanced Linux operating system, ExaDigm's XD1000 is easily field upgradeable avoiding redundancy due to changes in technology; offers the ability to add wireless connectivity, including CDMA, GPRS and WiFi, with the simple addition of a modem; delivers advanced security features providing maximum protection to merchants and cardholders alike; and provides unparalleled set-up and ease-of-use.

"ExaDigm is delighted with Alpha Card's decision to join the ever increasing number of merchant acquirers offering our payment solutions," said Maribel Davis, Director of Sales for ExaDigm. "In our ongoing efforts to ensure we deliver the industry's most innovative and cost-effective terminal products, we are pleased to be able to provide Alpha Card Services with an industry-leading solution that supports the needs of their customer base."

"We could not have partnered with a better terminal manufacturer," said Lazaros Kalemis, CEO for Alpha Card Services. "In our efforts to offer our merchant base cutting edge technology that will not effect our zero hold time promise, the XD1000's reliability combined with the outstanding support and training ExaDigm provides, are unparalleled by any other terminal manufacturer."
